NO TROOPS WENT.

The Fourteenth Regiment Held in Readibess - Governor Benver Concludes They Are Not Needed - Considerable Mystery for

Whether or not the Fourteenth and Eighteenth Regiments of the National Guard will be ordered to Johnstown was a question which no member of the Guard could answer yesterday afternoon.

After the Eighteenth had assembled on Sur day afternoon, 487 strong, on two hours' notice, and was then discharged, the officers and men felt so discouraged that there was no enthusiasm left among them. No instructions were received at all by any of the officers, and the asking for any.

The Fourteenth Regiment, however, was in a different position. At the armory of every company many privates waited all day yesterday, and until a late hour last night, expecting at any moment to receive orders To Put on Their Uniforms and go to Johnstown. This was because Colonel P. D. Perchment, the commander, had received the following telegram from Governor Is persuance of the above order the so ompanies of the Fourteanth regiment are produced to assemble at their respective at and await further orders.

By order of

P. D. PERCHMENT, Colonel. JAS. F. ROBB, Adjutant.

Jas. F. Roun, Adjutant.

The company officers gathered up their men yesterday, and kept them ready. Hour after hour went by, however, and still no more definite instructions came. Colonel Perchment secured a good many telegrams during the day from Johnstown, but none from General Hastings. In order to be certain that he would get the news promptly, the Colonel remained in his office all day long yesterday, but left after supper last evening, and could not be run down by a DISPATCH reporter. Mrs. Perchment said at at 10 o'clock last night that see was sure. No Orders Had Been Received ODENDEN, MD., June 2. Have your regiment well in hand, with plenty of cooked rations, ready to move on word from General Hastings to Johnstown. They must be prepared to relieve distress as well as to prevent stealing and preserve order. JAMES A. BEAVER, Governor.

In accordance with this, Colonel Perchinent issued the following:
by her husband to take out the regiment, or he would have been back home to let her know and get his uniform. More definite information in regard to the use

More definite information in regard to the use of the troops came from the Harrisburg correspondent of THE DISPATCH at a later hour last night. It was as follows.

Governor Beaver wired the following to President Harrison this evening: "The Sheriff of Cambria county says that everything is quiet. Can control without troops. People fairly housed and good order prevails. Food, so far, equal to the domand. Supplies offered, and clothing still greatly needed. Onservative estimates place the loss of life at from 5,000 to 18,000; the loss of property from $5,000,000 be 58,000,000. People at work heroically, and will have a large force to-morrow clearing away the debris. The sympathies of the world are freely expressed. One felegram from England gives $1,000. Will issue a general appeal to public to-night. Help comes from all quarters. Its universality greatly encourages our people. Will communicate with you promptly if anything occurs."

From this it seems altogether probable that none of the regiments of the National Guard will be ordered to Johnstown.

The feeling among the military men last night was not very pleasant, and the privates who had lost a day's work were not inclined to speak respectfully of the Commander-in-Chief.

CAPTAIN JONES' IDEAS.

He Thinks Governor Beaver and the Na tional Government Should Assist. Captain W. R. Jones, who has been at Johns town for three days assisting in the work of caring for the dead, sent a long telegram to the Chamber of Commerce last night. He says that it is important that 2,000 good laborers shall be sent up at once; that Governor Beaver should establish tents to shelter and provide for the workmen: that the National Government should send 1,000 feet of pontoon bridges to establish connection with the railroad depots to get supplies into the town, and that 10,000 regular army rations be forwarded at once. interest overnaul the debris and find the dead human beings and animals to prevent pollution of the river. If all these things are done Cap-tain Jones thicks the work will be pretty well cleared up by next Sunday. At 12:30 this morning the following telegram

Johnstown, June 1, 1889. Chamber of Commerce, Pittsburg:

It would be well to send at least 1,000 workmen with axes, picks, shovels, saws and other tools to remove the debris. The men should be organized in gangs under competant bosses, and be prepared to stay here ten days. I will furnish tents and they can be supplied from the general commissary. It is my judgment that all workmen living here, and willing to work should be paid good wages, and, to prevent imposition, purchase supplies for themselves and families from the general commissary. This will prevent idicates among the citizens. Captain Jones is here with 100 men, and has charge of all workmen from a distance. Among the tools there should be pienty of one-inch rope and 100 meetbarrows. Piense advise me.

None of the committee were present, and It would be well to send at least 1,000 workmen

None of the committee were present, and Secretary Benke telegraphed that the matter would be considered early this morning, and mpt action taken.

MORBID CURIOSITY SEEKERS. They Insist on Going, With Ghouls, to Gope at the Great Grief. The crowds of morbid curiosity seekers about the railroad depots seem to increase rather than diminish despite the efforts of the railroad people to keep out all sight seers. 'At the Union depot Superintendent Pitcairn's life was made a burden to him by the crowds of people that besieged his office endeavoring to convince him of the absolute necessity of their presence in the stricken city. The Superintendent stood it well, however, and when sufficient evidence was presented that those wishcient evidence was presented that those wishing to go to Johnstown had lost immediate friends or relatives and that their attendance there was a necessity, there was no trouble in procuring transportation.

But aside from this hundreds of people bought tickets for Ninevah, the present Eastern terminus of the road. The vast majority of these were sight seers who cared not to what trouble they put themselves as long as they could get to the scene of the disaster.

The railroad officials are making valiant efforts to keep such people away; but, despite all the efforts to discourage them, they con-all the efforts to discourage them, they continue buying tickets for the nearest point to Johnstown in order to be there.

Superintendent Pitcairn and Assistant Superintendent Trump were busy all day indorsing dispatches for transportation and arranging trains for all measures of relief.

Pittsburg's Police and Firemen Doing Good Work in Johnstown. Assistant Fire Chief Steele went to Joh town with two engines and 10 more men, mak-ing three engines and 30 of Pittsburg's fire laddies on the scene. Another engine was sent out at a late hour last night and Chief Evans announced his intention of leaving on the first train this morning for the purpose of relieving Chief Steele.

Chief J. O. Brown, of the Department of Public Safety, stated last night that he would go to Johnstown on the first train this morning with a detail of policemen to relieve those who with a detail of policemen to relieve those who have been steadily on duty since Sunday. The Pittsburg police will be assigned to sanitary duty on arrival.

WITHOUT A BATTLE.

The Washington Infantry Starts for Home After a Single Day. At 8:45 last evening the operator at the telegraph instrument in relief headquarters nanded Mr. Miller the following: JOHNSTOWN, June 2, 1882.

Reuben Miller, Pittsburg:
The Washington Infantry left for home at 3:10
this P. M. J. V. PATTON.

There was no explanation of why the com-pany was returning, and Mr. Miller laid the message down without comment.

There seems to have been a misunderstanding: but, even if Mr. Lee had said any such thing, it would only have been the same in effect as other very smart men were saying and insisting upon on Saturday. Nobody desired to prove anything by Mr. Lee. His opinion was only sought by reason of an entire misconception as to his knowledge of the matter. The correction sets him right, it is hoped.
